

Winnipeg November ... Promotion of Stanley F. Dingle, Superintendent of the Portage-Brandon division of the Canadian National Railways, to be general superintendent of the Alberta district, is announced by W. R. Devish, vice president of the western region. Mr. Dingle will make his headquarters in Edmonton and will succeed H. H. Sparling, who has been transferred to Montreal as chief of transportation for the system.

Mr. Dingle has been with the operating department since 1925. Prior to this he served three years as a stenographer in the operating department. In September, 1923 he was appointed secretary to the late H. H. Brewer, assistant general manager at Winnipeg. The following year he occupied the same position with the general superintendent of transportation and in 1930 was appointed chief clerk for the department.

In March, 1939, Mr. Dingle was appointed assistant superintendent at Dauphin and two years later was promoted to superintendent. Mr. Dingle returned to Winnipeg in May, 1942, as superintendent of the Portage-Brandon division.

Mr. Dingle has been a keen follower of athletics and was secretary treasurer and one of the organizers of the famous Winnipeg Blue Bombers, holders of the Canadian rugby championship.

WEDDINGS

ALLEN-RAMSAY

A quiet house wedding took place Tuesday, November 7th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Allen of Irma when their only daughter, Betty Winnifred Berks, became the bride of Claude Andrew Ramsay (third son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Ramsay also of Irma district). Rev. S. J. Bell officiated. Only immediate relatives were present.

The bride wore a floor length white sheer gown with high neckline and bishop sleeves, a sequin decorated bodice and shirred waistline. She wore a bridal veil held in place with a coronet of white flowers and carried a white prayer book with silver ribbon. The groom's sister, Miss Myrtle Ramsay who attended the bride, wore a pink rose crepe. The groom was supported by John Allen, brother of the bride. The bride was given in marriage by her father. The bride's mother wore a floral azure blue French crepe.

The groom's mother wore a black two piece effect crepe decorated with sequins.

After the ceremony and signing of the register, a wedding supper was served. Mrs. R. Lukens, Mrs. A. Emmott, the groom's mother and Mrs. J. Allen assisted in the serving.

The table was decorated in pink and white roses and pink tapers. The room was decorated with pink and white streamers. After the wedding supper, a three-tiered wedding cake was served from a side table. Rev. Bell proposed the toast to the bride and the groom responded.

After a few days, the bride returned to her duties in the C. W. A. C. at Saskatoon.

TAYLOR-RASMUSSEN

Pleasant Height Church, Calgary, was the scene of a pretty wedding on October 21 when Dorothy Rasmussen, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Rasmussen of Ceareal became the bride of William James Taylor, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor of Acme. Rev. Powell performed the ceremony.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, was beautifully attired in long white satin with a floor-length veil, and silver slippers. Her only ornament was a pearl necklace a gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of sweet heart roses.

Ethylene Rasmussen, dressed in long white sheer with lace inset and carrying a bouquet of yellow daisies, acted as bridesmaid. The groom was attended by his brother, Arthur Taylor.

Following the wedding, the bride's parents entertained some thirty guests at a reception held at the Empress Grill between pink candles burning on the brides table was beautifully decorated three-tiered wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor left for Banff on their honeymoon and upon returning will reside on the groom's farm west of Sunnyslope.

I Am Your newspaper

IT THERE APPEARED in the Publishers' Auxiliary of November 4th last an editorial written by Carl R. Miller for his own paper, the Willacy County Chronicle. The issue for which this editorial was written was calling attention to the Annual Observance of Newspaper Week and contains so much of interest to our own Canadian Weekly Newspaper Publishers that we are taking the liberty of placing it on record for the benefit of both publishers and readers. The editorial follows:

This week throughout the nation I am one among a group of some 9,000 country newspapers calling your attention to the annual observance of Newspaper Week.

As to being a big newspaper, boasting of big-name columnists or big-town syndicated features, I lay no claim. A small country paper, Rio Grande valley, Willacy county with its 14,000 people, lays no claim to being a big county.

But for 32 weeks ending October 1 this year I have brought you a total of 61,000 column inches of news about you, your family and your friends in and around Willacy county. This represents approximately the equivalent of six big Sunday issues of the Dallas Morning News, or 434 pages. Each week for the past year I have carried the names of over a thousand people you know, many of whom are your neighbors.

I have printed more than 200 pictures of Willacy county men and women serving in the army, navy and Marine Corps, and the rest of the world. I have brought you news and reprinted letters of your boys and girls in the army camps and naval bases; on the invasion fronts in Europe and the Pacific.

When the shocking news came from the War Department that Cpl. Oran Taylor was killed in action over the English channel, when Pte. Jose Rosales died from wounds received on the Italian front, you read about it in my columns. You read about the awards of the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Purple Heart and other official recognitions for Willacy county boys. You read about the proud day they received their symbolic wings; the day they were promoted to private's first class; the day they became colonels and majors.

Here on the home front in my columns you read about what the folks in Lyford, Sebastian, San Perita and Lasara were doing each week. You learned who attended the pink and blue showers, what was served at the meeting of the Stillman Track Home Demonstration club, who had charge of the program of the Study club, how many new Texans came into the world during the week, who preached at the Baptist church last Sunday. Each week on my editorial page you learned what the editor thought about things that concern Willacy county folks. You also read what other valley editors were writing.

By reading the advertisements in my columns you learned what local merchants had merchandise or other services to offer their customers; you learned what time and what tires and gasoline in your weekly routine of war-time shopping. You scanned columns for news of what was playing at the local movie theatres. That, too, was rendering a worthwhile service. So on, through my pages until you read the Trading Post that Mr. B. V. Crowell's milch cow had strayed away from home.

I am your hometown newspaper. Each week I record the sentiments, the pathos, the joys, the absurdities common to all American communities. Each week I am your historian, reflecting for posterity the simple things you do, the noble things you perform, the homes you are building, the sons and daughters you are raising—the America that you are.

As long as there is a United States as we now know it, as long as we continue to raise valiant, unselfish, unafraid men as we are doing today, as long as more than 85 per cent of the population of these United States are country people, like the people I now serve, we the 9,000 country papers throughout the length and breadth of the land, will continue to serve you.

Proudly I say, "I am your newspaper!"—Carl R. Miller in the Willacy County Chronicle, Raymondville, Texas.

We think the time has come for all our editors to stress the value of their own weekly newspaper, setting forth what it means to their community. It has been the experience of many publishers that the war has made the people acutely conscious of the value and importance of their weekly newspaper and this is evidenced by the greatly increased circulation and by the comments and attitude of the public in general. Weekly newspaper readers have awakened to the fact that nowhere else than in their weekly paper can they read news concerning themselves and their fellow townsfolk. This is important to them because nearly every family has some story with a war angle. We must not forget too, those who have gone out to larger centers in these war days, but who never forget their home ties and look forward eagerly to the next issue of the home paper. This evidence of confidence and appreciation brings its own responsibilities, which is that the weekly paper must be kept on a high level of attractiveness. The editor intends doing his part and if readers rally to his support there is bound to emerge from this co-operation a better weekly newspaper and a more enlightened community.

Stratocruiser Said To Have Operating Range Of 3,500 Miles

A military transport version of the B-29, with the speed, range and high-altitude performance of the Superfortress, is undergoing tests, it was disclosed at Washington in an announcement by the Boeing Aircraft Company of a "stratocruiser" for post-war production.

The transport, the announcement said, will have these features: A maximum capacity of 100 passengers or 35,000 pounds of cargo; a top speed of 400 miles an hour, with a cruising speed of 340; a ceiling of 30,000 feet, with a pressurized cabin keeping atmospheric conditions equivalent to those of 8,000; powered with four engines with a maximum of 3,500 horsepower each; an operating range of 3,500 miles, providing non-stop New York-to-London or transcontinental flights.

Price Control
And Rationing
Information

Q.—My son is now in the Armed Forces. Must I keep in his No. 4 ration book as well as his No. 5 book or may I keep a few coupons for when he comes home on week-ends?

A.—All ration books in the name of a member of the Armed Forces must be surrendered to his unit when he reports for duty. Your son will be provided by his unit with an Application for Ration Coupons for members of the Armed Forces or a Ration Card when coming home for 48 hours or longer.

Q.—I read the other day that grocers could deliver orders under one dollar. Yet, when I ordered 25c worth of sugar my grocer said he couldn't deliver it. Can he refuse to make such a delivery?

A.—Yes, while the regulations limiting deliveries to one dollar or over has been removed, each retailer can decide his own delivery policy, and, of course, deliveries are still restricted to one per day on any route.

Q.—I find that I will not be using my remaining rationing sugar coupons as the fruit season is about over. Are they of any value or should I destroy them?

A.—Canning sugar coupons which are not required should be destroyed. However, they may be used to purchase sugar for canning or be exchanged for preserves coupons at your Local Ration Board until December 31.

Q.—I am thinking of selling my tractor now and buying a new one in the spring. Must I obtain a permit to do so?

A.—Yes, you must obtain a permit to sell your tractor or you will not be entitled to make application to buy a new one.

Q.—When buying clothes should I keep the new Wartime Prices and Trade Board label that I see on so many garments that I purchase these days.

A.—By all means. If you have to make a complaint as to size, price or quality of the garment you will need the label in order to trace the article and to check as to your complaint.

Please send your questions or your request for the pamphlet "Consumers' News" or the Blue Book in which you keep track of your selling prices, mentioning the name of this paper to the nearest Wartime Prices and Trade Board office in your province.

Churchill Slept In Bed Goering Always Used In Paris

Prime Minister Churchill's recent visit to Paris must have brought him a bit of personal satisfaction over the liberation of France. While there, Mr. Churchill slept in the same bed in the royal suite at Quai d'Orsay which Marshal Goering used to use during his visits to Paris during the German occupation.

The fat marshal also occasionally used a bed in an adjoining room which was occupied by Foreign Secretary Eden, who accompanied Mr. Churchill.

Gratuity Legislation

Applications Should Be Sent In By Men Discharged From The Services

Fewer than 41,000 applications for war service gratuities have been received by the navy, army and air force at Ottawa since it was announced some time ago that application forms were available, a survey by The Canadian Press showed.

Approximately 195,000 in the three services were discharged or became casualties prior to Oct. 1, and of the number only 40,700 have applied for the gratuities, provided under legislation passed at the last session of parliament.

Spokesmen for the services said it was the backlog of 135,000 who have not yet applied that was causing worry and it was hoped they or their dependents would file applications promptly. Personnel discharged after that date automatically filled out their gratuity application forms before leaving the service.

Application forms are available at all military and air force establishments in Canada and at all district and sub-district offices of the former pensions department, now the department of veterans affairs.

Dependents of men killed on active service need not fill out forms, but giving the man's name, rank and regimental number, and the extent to which they were dependent upon him.

Under the gratuity legislation active service personnel will receive $7.50 for every 30 days service in the western hemisphere, which includes Canada, the West Indies, Newfoundland and South America; $15 for every 30 days service overseas, including the Aleutians, Iceland and Greenland; seven days' pay and allowances for each six months' service overseas, and a re-establishment credit.

Members of the home defence army who served in Kiaka are entitled to gratuities covering the period of their service there. Other home defence forces, however, receive no benefits under the legislation.

Nationals of other countries who served in Canadian forces are entitled to the gratuities. Canadians who have been discharged from other Empire forces during the present war may apply, if they now are domiciled and resident in Canada, and were domiciled in Canada at the outbreak of hostilities. Those discharged from the other Empire forces need apply by letter only, giving full particulars of service.

Payment of gratuities is expected to begin early in the new year. For that reason it was advisable for those eligible to file their applications immediately.

"Those eligible should realize that if they file their applications in the middle of December only they cannot expect to receive their cheque the first week in January," a spokesman said. "There is too much administrative work to be done to allow such speedy handling of applications."

Dependents were eligible for gratuities only if they were eligible for dependents' allowances at the date of the member's death or, if not eligible for dependents' allowances, providing they were dependent upon the member at the time and in receipt of assigned pay from him.

The discharged personnel themselves, however, must fill in all the details required in the application forms.

Indian Family That Has Contributed Much To The War effort

Chief Joe Dreaver of the Mistawasis Indian reserve in Saskatchewan, is one person who knows the meaning of war.

The day war was declared Chief Dreaver arrived in Saskatoon with all the boys of military age in the reserve. There were 14 of them, among them his three sons. All enlisted in the Canadian Army.

The years that followed saw the little group scattered but on Oct. 6 it was his first death. Sgt. Harvey Dreaver was killed in Italy. The reserve was also notified that Pte. Sam Dreaver of Leask, Sask., an uncle of Harvey's had been wounded.

Chief Dreaver has an outstanding military record himself. A veteran of the First Great War, he is now a member of the Veterans Guard of Canada guarding Nazi prisoners of war at Medicine Hat, Alta.

Recently he visited Saskatoon to meet his son George, discharged after service overseas, Henry, acting chief, and his daughters, Myrtle of the R.C.A.F. (W.D.), a member of the R.C.A.F. (W.D.). After the reunion he returned to the reservation for a memorial service in honor of his son.

Took No Chances

Goering Removed All Of His Possessions From East Prussia

While assuring the people that East Prussia was invulnerable, Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering nevertheless sent fifteen trucks to his hunting lodge three weeks before the Russians launched their current offensive into East Prussia. The trucks were loaded until they bulged with Goering's possessions, including valuable paintings cut from their frames; then they moved off toward Berlin.

The lodge, which is in Rominten Forest, used to belong to the Hohenzollern family. It is no hut. It has two massive wings, connected by a glass-domed gallery, and is ornamented with carved animal heads and Gothic stained-glass windows. The forest is well stocked with deer and wild boar, which Kaiser Wilhelm used to shoot, and after him Goering. Now the game no doubt is helping to feed the Red Army, for Goering's private hunt was right: the Russians did take the hunting preserve and its lodge.—New York Herald Tribune.

SMILE AWHILE

A soldier was on the carpet for striking a sergeant.

"Now," barked the colonel, "I want no prevarication. Did you, or did you not, strike Sgt. Prinsloo?"

The prisoner thought for a minute. Then, "The answer is in the infirmary," he replied.

Father—There's plenty of time for our daughter to think of getting married. Let her wait until the right man comes along.

Mother—Why should she? I didn't.

They were having their first quarrel.

"I'm disappointed," said the husband. "When we were first married I thought you were an angel." "Yes," retorted his wife. "I suppose that's why you never bought me any clothes."

Jones—Weren't you in the hospital last week?

Smith—Yes. I had a terrible high fever.

Jones—What did they give you to cure it?

Smith—A homely nurse!

What's matter with you, are you blind?" said the pedestrian.

"Blind?" snapped the driver. "I hit you, didn't I?"

Old Gentlemen—You're an honest lad; but it was a $10 bill, not 10 cents.

Small Boy—I know, mister. It was a $10 bill I picked up. But the last time I found one the man who owned it didn't have any change.

"By jove, old man, your walls are thin! You can hear the next-door wireless just as though it were in this room."

"I'll say the walls are thin! Why, when I get a headache the fellow next door takes two aspirins!"

Smithiths—That confounded cat of yours kept me awake all night. Fudum—Well, what do you expect me to do about it—have it destroyed?

Smithiths—No, but I was thinking you might have it tuned.

Junior—I won't get married until I find a girl like Grandpa married.

Friend—Huh! They don't have women like that today.

Junior—That's funny! Grandpa only married her yesterday.

"Now that I've told you about my past, do you want to marry me?"

"Sure."

"I suppose you'll expect me to live it down?"

"No! I'll expect you to live up to it."

Life Insurance Agent—My dear sir, have you made any provision for those who come after you?

Hardup—Yes, I put the dog at the door, and told the servant to say that I'm out of town.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

There's Something About Christmas

By MARY ROUNDS

McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Snow and sleet, and rain freezing on the windshield. It was Christmas Eve and Donna had been driving since early morning.

She set her teeth and stepped out again into ankle-deep slush. The wiper wasn't doing a thing to the heavy layer of ice. With her own special tool, made from a clothespin and an old safety-razor blade, she scraped a space that would stay clear for just about three minutes. Thank goodness, it wasn't much farther to Aunt Jane's!

A two hundred mile trip was bad enough, but to have to drive the last few miles in this kind of weather was enough to wear down any girl. But Aunt Jane and Uncle Bill would be glad to see her, and if she could give these two dear old people a little happiness by spending Christmas with them, she supposed she ought to arrive in something like a cheerful frame of mind.

Sighing wearily, she climbed back into the car, switched on the lights and started.

It was growing dark when she crossed the old iron bridge and swung into Payton. The town was bright with Christmas decorations. Strings of twinkling lights spanned the main street, making an arch as lovely as if made of colorful jewels. Chimes were ringing, too and Donna, in spite of aching muscles and numbing fingers, thrilled as she always did to the ageless beauty of "Silent night! Holy night!"

She drove slowly under the Christmas lights, then, with the music still echoing in her heart, turned off to the narrow river road that twisted in and out among the foothills of Mt. Knox. Aunt Jane lived at Fay Corners, six miles further on.

Donna remembered the crooked little road. It would probably be a solid sheet of ice. She wasn't mistaken. About a mile beyond the town when she'd just pulled her car out of a bad skid, a horn tooted impudently and a splashed gray coupe careened past.

"Idiot!" she thought furiously, as the car slithered around the next curve. "He won't get far at that rate!"

Two curves farther on, she came upon the coupe. Its wheels were headed toward the road, its trunk miraculously rested against a tree trunk, and its headlights pointed crazily heavenward.

Donna eased up alongside and rolled down her window. A masculine head appeared, with hatless brown hair, nice brown eyes and good features, followed by a pair of broad shoulders, and gloved hands that thumped on the car door.

"Confound this ice!" The door swung open and the man grinned sheepishly. "This is the car I just passed, isn't it?"

Donna nodded. "I'll take you to a telephone," she offered, "or back to town for a wrecker."

The young man looked her over appraisingly, then dug out a professional looking black bag. "A doctor," Donna decided a little more kindly, "so I suppose he has a perfect right to stop on it if he likes."

And then they were in Donna's car, proceeding toward Fay Corners a little faster than before, but oh, so carefully. And the young doctor was important. "You'll come right in and help. If I know this outfit, I'm going to need somebody like you pretty badly. They never have anything ready, won't even call a doctor until things begin to get lively, and then they expect him to break his neck to get here."

"Arrived at Weston's," "I'll wait," Donna offered.

"You'll do nothing of the kind," Dr. Mathewson told her with a tired smile that somehow warmed her heart and made her feel needed and important. "You'll come right in and help. If I know this outfit, I'm going to need somebody like you pretty badly. They never have anything ready, won't even call a doctor until things begin to get lively, and then they expect him to break his neck to get here."

"You very nearly did," Donna reminded him as she followed him into the weather-beaten old house.

According to the clock it wasn't really very long before everything was over, and the tiny newcomer, wrapped in an old flannel blanket lay sleeping in her arms.

"Good girl!" Dr. Mathewson complimented her as they both looked down into the tiny wrinkled face. "You can put him down now. We'll go. If you could drop me off at a telephone somewhere—I don't know what I'd have done without you—"

Donna headed straight for "Aunt Jane's." "It's only a short way," she explained. "There's a telephone. They're expecting me, and a cup of hot coffee won't do either of us any harm."

"And you passed up all this—" he marveled a little later, sitting before Aunt Jane's fire, "—just to help me?" "Doctor's orders!" she reminded him. "And anyway it's Christmas Eve and all the time I was remembering that other Baby, the very first Christmas Baby—" her voice grew soft, "—it seemed almost as if I were doing it for—him—"

Dr. Mathewson's eyes smiled into hers with a look of deep understanding. "I felt it too. There's something about Christmas—"

They sat gazing into the fire, and Donna felt glowing and happy all over. There certainly was something about Christmas. Especially this Christmas!

Must young calves be raised on milk?

HERE'S THE ANSWER

No. Feed "Miracle" Caf Meal and you will save almost a ton of milk per calf. The sale of this milk means money, and "Miracle" Caf Meal raises calves at least 4 months earlier. That's a real saving on feed costs.

Valuable Charts That Cover Wide Areas In Northern Canada

A complete set of aeronautical charts covering all the land areas of the world will be available to civil fliers in the post-war era if the action of a technical sub-committee of the International Civil Aviation Conference is approved.

This development took place while top delegates of the "Big Three" powers, the United States, United Kingdom and Canada, worked toward a joint three-party proposal on an international agreement to set up a world aviation authority or council.

They sought a way out of a deadlock which results from British and Canadian insistence on a world authority with regulatory powers as American desires for a situation which will allow airlines to compete freely for traffic.

The sub-committee of the conference on standards for aeronautical charts is one of the groups of experts within the conference who have been making the bricks that go to build a world aviation structure while the top-level ministers and diplomats debate the form the structure is to take.

In the making of the charts that cover Canada has gone the work done by the Canadian topographical survey, assisted by the aerial photographic operations of the R.C.A.F. over the past years.

The sections also provides maps of some Arctic and sub-Arctic areas which had never been mapped in detail before and the material for which comes from aerial photographic operations carried out by the United States Army Air Force since the start of the war.

Areas in other little-travelled parts of the world including Labrador, Greenland and parts of Africa also are shown on the charts as a result of work by various branches of the Allied forces.

As much of the information on the charts is of military value they will not be released for general airline use until after the war but they now are available to and used by all the Allied forces.

The Union Jack

To Be Flown Over United Kingdom Office In Dublin

The Union Jack in future will be flown from the office of the United Kingdom representative in Dublin, P. J. Don-Byrne, Dominion Secretary, announced in the House of Commons.

The announcement came after Prof. Douglas Savory, Conservative member from Belfast University, said the Irish Republican flag was flown over the Eire High Commissioner's office in London and the Swedish flag over the German Legation in Dublin.

Mr. Emery-Evans said that it had not been the practice to fly a flag from the United Kingdom office in Dublin but the attitude of neutral Eire toward the war "and the fact that enemy representatives in Dublin are in a position to fly their national flag clearly raises special considerations in this case."

He said Viscount Cranborne, Dominions Secretary, felt "these considerations do not justify the departure from normal practice obtaining in the Commonwealth" and the flag will be flown in future.

SELECTED RECIPES

NAVY BEAN CHOWDER

1 cup white navy beans
3 cups cold water
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons salt pork or bacon (cut in small pieces)
1½ cups diced raw potatoes
2 tablespoons mild-flavored fat
2 teaspoons flour
2 cups milk
Salt and pepper to taste
Farsley
Pick over, wash and soak beans overnight in cold water to cover. Drain. Simmer in salted water until tender, about two hours. Fry salt pork or bacon, add onion and brown. Combine with beans. Add potato. Simmer 15 minutes. In the meantime, melt fat in pan, blend in flour gradually and add milk, stirring constantly until thickened. Cook 10 minutes. Add to beans. Season and serve sprinkled with chopped parsley. Six servings.

FOR AIDING ALLIES

Four thousand civilians, mostly women and children, were killed by the Germans in Athens for aiding the Allies, the British radio declared in a broadcast. One victim was a 15-year-old girl who wrote on a wall, "Welcome to the Allies," London added.

Processing Sugar Crop

Two Alberta Plants Expect To Turn Out 110,000,000 Pounds

Southern Alberta is pouring about 1,000,000 pounds of sweetness daily into the sugar bowls of Canadians as processing of the most valuable crop of sugar beets ever grown in the province continues on a round-the-clock basis at both the Raymond and Picture Butte factories.

Each plant is processing about 1,500 tons of beets daily and the factory campaigns are expected to extend well into January. Both factories started operations late in September, shortly after harvesting of beets started.

Harvesting of the crop of 335,000 tons of beets from 29,000 acres was completed early in November and sugar extraction from the crop is expected to approach 110,000,000 pounds.

Beets going through the processing plant averaging 18 per cent. in sugar content. The general feeling is that growers will receive in the neighborhood of $11.50 a ton for their 1944 beets.

Has Tangled History

Dutch Town Of Breda Typical Of Many European Communities

The story of Breda, the Dutch town which was freed by the British from the Germans the other day, is typical of the tangled history of many European communities. Originally a Feudal estate of the Holy Roman Empire, it was sold in 1323 to Brabant and passed later into the hands of William I, first stadtholder of the Netherlands. It was captured twice by the Spaniards, once in 1581 and again in 1625, but was recaptured in 1637 by Frederick Henry of Orange and in 1648 it was finally ceded to Holland by the treaty of Westphalia. The French also captured it twice, in 1702 and in 1795, but in 1813 the citizens of Breda again made themselves masters of the town. Two peace treaties were negotiated there by England, France, Denmark and Holland, one in 1667 and the other in 1746-47.—Sault Daily Star.

Even When The Cake Is Total Flop

Manufacturer Guarantees Product

The hubby who went after the flour and baking powder manufacturer when his birthday cake came out flat, proves that there is protection in a brand name

Will the manufacturer of a branded product protect the consumer against loss should that product not live up to advertised claims? A story related to "Marketing" promises loudly and confidently that he will.

It was a hot and sizzling day downtown when the story, and at home in the apartment kitchen with the oven heated, it was an inferno. But the heroine of the story wanted to celebrate her hubby's birthday with a special cake which his soul loved. Working to a tried and true recipe, used for fifteen years without a fault, she laid out the ingredients, including—baking powder and—cake flour.

Mixing completed, oven just right, the cake was put to bed and the heroine dropped her stirring spoon. When the oven door was opened there emerged not a cake—but a pancake. It was as flat as that! The clock registered time for a second try, so the lady rallied and began all over again with the tried recipe, the—baking powder and—the cake flour.

Hubby arrived tired and sticky to find his wife hot and bothered. On the kitchen table was the second cake—flatter than the first. The tearful story was told. "Hubby knew from 43 years' experience that his wife could cook. She can't be the eggs, or the butter or the oil, or the flour," he argued. "It's either the—baking powder or the—cake flour. I'll get after the so-and-so's and make them eat this cake!"

He bundled up a generous section of the flat cake, the baking powder and cake flour, and hid them in the advertising agency that advertised the cake. Two days later the dietitian sent him a letter with the following letter, which read:

"My wife's a real cook!" she was told. "She's won't be cooking contests than you've ever heard about! Anyhow, it's M-X birthday cake!" Two days later the dietitian sent him a letter with the following letter, which read:

"After trying the baking powder and cake flour which you gave us, and after examining the cakes made with them, I am convinced that something has happened to the baking powder, which will explain the difficulty experienced by your wife."

From the results, I am inclined to question whether, by mistake, something other than the baking powder got into the tin; it neither looks nor tastes normal, and did not work properly in even simple cake recipes, which I tried. If it actually is baking powder, I should say that it is old and stale, or something of the kind. In any case, the sample of—cake flour was tried in the cake recipe with which the difficulty arose, using another baking powder. The cake was as with the result. We shall be interested to hear if this clears up the problem.

"That was that," said hubby to "Marketing."

"So I bundled up the baking powder, the recipe and the awful sample of cake and the advertising agency's letter, and sent the letter, asking for his comments. P.D. included in the package were three more tins of the baking powder, all bought within the last eight months. Incidentally, we have used this brand for more than 35 years."

There was immediate action. Telephone carried apologetic. A city traveler came with a new tin of baking powder and a refund for the three tins returned, plus payment for the wasted ingredients. The sales manager expressed thanks for having been so thorough in his attention. The manufacturer's laboratory reported that secret code marks on the labels showed that the baking powder the housewife had used was five years old, the other three tins being 4, 3 and 2 years old. Research men examined stocks in 300 stores at once and found little trouble with old goods, although there was some due to the expiration date and wartime conditions. "We shall appreciate your wife's kindness in purchasing our baking powder in smaller quantities, so that the possibility of obtaining over-age baking powder will be minimized," wrote the division sales manager. He concluded his letter with these words:

New British House

Princess Elizabeth Will Have Special Gallery According To Plans

Plans are complete now for rebuilding the House of Commons, damaged by bombs on May 10, 1941. The cost, if the House finally approves the present rebuilding scheme, will be about $5,000,000 over a period of six or seven years.

In the new House, Princess Elizabeth is to have her own special gallery, facing the Speaker. This is a departure from precedent, due to the fact that the heir to the throne is a woman. In the old days the first seat in the peers' gallery immediately over the clock was reserved for the Prince of Wales on important occasions. In the new chamber the Princess will be able to enter her gallery by private elevator and by a special entrance. No ceremony will be attached to her visits.

The proposed new chamber was designed by Sir Giles Scott. It will consist of the site of the old one, will be the same size, but will have an up-to-date system of lighting and ventilation and will provide more accommodation for the public and the press.

They Get Homesick

But Nurses Of R.C.A.M.C. Overseas Are Striking To Job

The nursing sisters of R.C.A.M.C. are doing a "tremendous job" overseas and can't get up to the forward battle areas often enough to suit them, Lt.-Col. Agnes Neill, overseas matron-in-chief of the nursing service, said.

"I'm proud of every one of them," Col. Neill, who comes from Peterborough, Ont., said in an interview. "They're doing a tremendous job and they're always cheerful and bright about it, although I'm sure at times they're just as homesick as any other Canadian overseas."

Stuck To Their Job

Magnificent Work Of Wrens Of The Dover Command

Shell-fire and flying-bomb attacks on Dover turned what was previously a dangerous job for the Wrens of the Dover Command into one of the most hazardous tasks of the war.

I learned their story in a naval machine shop in the forefront of "Hell-fire Corner." The shop was crammed with racks of live torpedoes. The "Torpedo Wrens," as the girls whose job it is to overhaul the Navy's torpedoes are known, were working as usual, testing the torpedoes, cleaning and greasing them, and loading them by crane on to waiting trucks. This vital work never stopped, even during the fiercest bombardment of the area.

A single shell-splitter, I was told by an R.N. officer, would have been sufficient to have sent "the whole works sky-high." But the Wrens never faltered. "They were magnificent," said the officer. They refused to take cover, except on one occasion when they were ordered to do so, and then they returned to work within 10 minutes.—Leeds Yorkshire Post.

"It's MY birthday cake!!"

Please accept our sincere appreciation for your kindness in drawing this matter to our attention, as we consider it a pleasure to have the opportunity of correcting any complaints against any of our products because, as you know, we are very jealous of the reputation that our products enjoy.

"What interested me most," said "Marketing" informant, "was the instantaneous reaction of the firm who were really grateful for the opportunity to remove any possible reflection on their lines. It struck me that you can't get this protection from maverick or unknown brands most of which are selling now only because of shortages in the nationally advertised products. My wife and I have proven once more that the firms who are advertising in smaller quantities, so that the possibility of obtaining over-age baking powder will be minimized, wrote the division sales manager. TOUGH ON SHOES!

1,300,000 MORE PAIRS
OF CHILDREN'S SHOES LAST YEAR

In the last twelve months Canadian manufacturers made for Canadian children about 25% more shoes than in 1939—a fine job—done by the organization and direction of production by this Board's Footwear Administration and the cooperation of manufacturers. And this was accomplished while they were making more essential type shoes for war workers, who wear out their shoes faster than they do in their normal employment.

THE DISAPPEARING ACT OF RUBBER-SOLE SHOES

In normal times most young Canadians got at least one pair of rubber soled, canvas-top shoes a year. But natural rubber supplies fell into enemy hands, and the manufacture of rubber footwear was drastically curtailed. We're now using reclaimed and synthetic rubber in these shoes—there have been more of them this year and there will be more next year. Leather-soled shoes have had to be used in place of this rubbersoled footwear but shoes made of leather need more care than running shoes. When they don't get it they wear out more quickly; when they get wet they must be dried slowly, away from direct heat—and they should be greased also. It's not always a case of poor quality; it's poor care.

LEATHER GOES TO WAR

You've got to have good strong leather for children's shoes, but the soldiers are taking most of ours for their boots. For these leathers, a substantial portion of the hides came from South America and other countries. War cut down these imports and there have been difficulties in getting enough of these and our own hides tanned into leather due to shortage of workers. The production of high grade leather shoes has, however, been maintained at the highest level consistent with the labour and materials available. While shoe factories have been working overtime, factory capacity for civilian shoes cannot be expanded in wartime and it's not possible to change plants from the manufacture of one type of shoe to another—for instance, from women's to children's. The processes, the machines and the leathers are different.

TURNING HIDES INTO SHOES

There are very large war uses of leather —for instance, in footwear. A soldier requires four pairs of shoes in the first year of his service and about three pairs per year thereafter. But, what is more important, he needs to have his shoes re-soled four or five times a year. His shoes are of the highest quality leathers obtainable, leaving the other grades of leather for civilian use. Airmen need leather for jackets and mitts. War factories need leather for belting and farmers need leather for harness. Leather

—the best leathers—has gone to war.
